ELECTION FUNDS.

There are two very interesting articles in the North American Review upon the French electoral system, one by M. Naquet of the French Chamber of Deputies and the other by Theodore Staunton, the latter more a comment on the former and entering more into details.

Mr. Staunton's long residence in France will excuse him in the statement that he makes in regard to the manner a political party collects its sinews of war, differing, he says, in France entirely from that in this country. In France a certain amount of the taxes paid by the people for the support of the federal government is set aside as a fund to be used by the party in power for election purposes, and Mr. Staunton thinks that in this country the candidate or his party must furnish the funds. That is true in theory but not in fact, especially if the party in power be the Republican party, not that they are more dishonest individually than the members of the Democratic party, but by the accident of the cardinal issue in the contest in this election they levy their election contributions indirectly on the people without distinction of party.

The Republican party levies a tariff that benefits so largely the manufacturers of the country that when they need election funds it is only necessary for their national committee to call upon these wealthy manufacturers, or as the popular phrase is, "fry the fat" out of them to obtain all the money they need.

The tariff is important to every one of these manufacturers, without it they would have no special privileges, no superior advantages in competition for fortunes with all of the other people of the country, but with it they receive a bonus on the articles they manufacture so large that they can afford to buy the presidency. Without it Mr. Carnegie could not have contributed $100,000 to aid in the effort to elect Mr. Harrison, and while the French election fund is collected directly for that purpose, and a limited amount set aside to aid the party in power in elections, the fund collected in this country from the manufacturers comes indirectly from all the people, as it is obtained by the manufacturers from a tax paid by the people, for a tax in the nature of our tariff comes after all out of the pockets of the consumer.

Mr. Staunton takes occasion to show what an advantage this limited sum in France gives to the party in power in perpetuating that power; but a Frenchman would be astonished at the stupendous sums of money collected for the same purposes in this country. It is only limited by the necessity and can be swelled to any amount by the Republican national committee intimating to these wealthy manufacturers that the race is doubtful, knowing that these favored government pets cannot afford to lose a race which would mean the reduction of their ability to make money to the same opportunities enjoyed by all other men not so fortunate as to have class legislation in their favor. There is really no difference in the system of raising election funds in France and in this country by the parties in power, except in the amount of the fund, the francs of France being duplicated by our dollars here, or five times as much; and if necessary a thousand times as much can be raised here and the amount, no matter how much, is contributed by the consumers of this country who pay the tax to the government and the bonus to the manufacturer whenever they purchase any article for use, from the coat worn, to the plate dined upon, from the plow breaking up the land, to the rails over which the crop is transported when it is railroaded to market. The French system is a little more open and honest than the system of collecting campaign funds in this country is at present under the manipulations of a high tariff.

FROM DIFFERENT STANDPOINTS.

They say it takes a thief to catch a thief. It is rather amusing to read the warnings of each national committee against the anticipated election frauds on the day of election of the other side. Each side, respectively speaks with all the authority of a saint and warns their fellow saints to beware of the tricks of the sinners on the other side. Read a Republican proclamation and one would imagine its authors had just adjourned a prayer meeting where they had petitioned that the sins of their opponents should be forgiven, but that their infamous schemes should share the fate of David's enemies. Read a Democratic manifesto and one would imagine its authors had hold of the horns of the altar while their wicked political enemies were waiting at the door to take their pious scalp. In fact each side seem to believe that the other side possess all the devilish ingenuity of the lower regions to put to flight the saints of the earth.

If the corruption of each political party is measured in the half bushel of the other, both parties ought to be swept from the face of the earth. It would certainly be a calamity for Harrison to be elected, but the country has been able to prosper even under Republican rule for some time. It is true a Democratic policy would insure more general prosperity but men are very much alike in this country and the fact that they belong to one party or another is not prima facie evidence that they are political rascals, or that they would risk the salvation of their souls to accomplish the election of several men they have never seen. Devotion to principle is a commendable merit, but wholesale denunciation of political opponents is a poor way to show it.

ITALIAN DAMAGE CASES.

Families of the Lynched Italians Insist on an Immediate Trial.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—A decided sensation in legal and other circles was created here by new developments in the damage suits against the city of New Orleans by the families and heirs of the Italians who were taken from the parish prison and lynched by a mob on March 14, 1891. The general impression was that the cases would never come to a final but it was learned today that counsel for plaintiffs will on Monday move in the United States circuit court for immediate granting of a day for trial, and that a prominent attorney from the East will probably assist in the prosecution of the cases, and that a special jury will likely be asked for. Italian Consul Monti returned day before yesterday from Rome with a mass of documents and evidence which gives the impression that the Italian government is the real cause of new infusion of life into the suits. Circuit Court Clerk Hunt has received from the American consul general at Rome evidence from several parties there concerning the youth Gaspari Grimandi, alias Marchesi, son of the shoemaker from whose shop the murderous fire was opened, and who is said to have ran ahead of Chief Hennessy and gave a whistle as the signal of the chief's approach. There are eleven suits, each for $30,000.

Federal Judge's Election Law Decision.
 MACON, Ga., Nov. 4.—Acting for Judge P. deee Judge Speer of the United States district court rendered a decision declaring all registration laws in Georgia, inoperative. Dr. Newton Not Guilty.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The committee appointed more than twelve months ago by Bishop Potter to investigate charges of heresy against Rev. Dr. Newton, rector of the Episcopal church of All Souls at Sixty-sixth street and Madison avenue, reported charges as "not proven." They decided that the "catholicity of the Episcopal church is broad and large enough to allow a man to preach according to his moods. The utterances of Dr. Newton must be ascribed to his mood and we trust that he, upon consideration, will see his way clear to revoking the utterances in question." This verdict is signed by all the commissioners.

Scrofula in the Neck

The following is from Mrs. J. W. Tillbrook, wife of the Mayor of McKeesport, Penn.: "My little boy Willie, now six years old, had a bunch under one ear which the doctor said was Scrofula. As it continued to grow he finally lanced it and it discharged for some time. We then began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla and he improved very rapidly until the sore healed up. Last winter it broke out again, followed by Erysipelas. We again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla with most excellent results and he has had no further trouble. His cure is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla."

VANITY FAIR.

The hour of 4:30 p. m. having been recorded on Time's dial a passer by glancing in the ladies parlor of the Driskill hotel on last Wednesday afternoon could have seen a gathering of maidens fair who wore a serious look on their sweet faces that betokened something of importance. Pertaining rather of the nature of an "executive session" it was useless to apply for admittance, but perching like Poe's "Raven," just above the door, an attentive listener might have gleaned something of note. The orators of the evening comprised the entire crowd present, some fifteen in number, and as there had been no set rule for "deliberations" the orators all spoke in unison or rather anything but unison, but still they all had the floor at once. The object of the meeting as gleaned by "The Raven" above the door after some heated discussion had been indulged in was a Leap Year german to be given their young gentlemen friends on next Friday week at the residence of Dr. White at the Lubatic asylum.

Divers and sundry rules and resolutions were presented and passed upon unfavorably. What suited one met not the approval of others. Some wanted the occasion noticed in the papers as being "recherche" and others preferred the word "sweet." The objection raised to the word "sweet" was that it was not expressive enough. "Recherche" might be translated into "reaching out," and therefore would be symbolic of the intent of the german. Another resolution that was favorably commented on was to the effect that all "souvenirs" given the young men should either by words or significance convey the meaning of "forget me not." The opera house amusement program was the most popular "souvenir" voted on during the meeting.

Ere the close of the meeting "The Raven" was called away from his perch by Mr. Urie, who in a ghostly whisper that betokened nervousness, requested to be informed of the purpose of the meeting. Upon being informed of the drift of matters Mr. Urie gaspingly asked if it was under the same management as last spring. Upon being informed in the negative his troubled face brightened slightly. "The Raven" tried to break the news gently, but when he vouchsafed the information that the ladies would like to charter a layout car until 2 a. m. for a dollar and a quarter he gasped reeled and would have fallen had not tender arms supported him. As soon as sufficiently recovered to permit of traveling Mr. Urie bought a ticket to the end of the earth and says he will abide there in the future. The leap year german crowd last year hired a street car for $3 and made it go all over town at 3:30 a. m., the expense attendant upon which was almost $12 to Mr. Urie. By a careful estimate he has figured out that there being about sixty couples in attendance, the total in case hacks were used would be $125, and he very generously proposes to let the young ladies have the car for one-third that amount, which would be $40.

Just as the meeting was adjourning some tardy members drifted in and the whole business had to be gone over again for their benefit. After an hour and a half deliberation the meeting adjourned, and the best conclusion of what was done can be gleaned by noting the question of one of the participants who asked her companion as she came down the steps: "Since I come to think of it, what did we do?" "I don't know," was the reply.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Julia, daughter of Gen. Felix H. Robertson of Waco, to Mr. Charles Dexter Cleveland of Coleman. This announcement will occasion the speeding of well-wishes from Miss Robertson's many friends in Austin, where during her visit last winter she made so many warm admirers.

Cards were officially issued last Wednesday announcing an "at home" by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ross, Jr., for tomorrow evening. The reception hours are from 5 to 8 o'clock and the occasion is complimentary to Miss Emma Duffield the talented sister of Mrs. Ross. Quite a number of society belles attended by an equal number of gentlemen will assist in the reception and the occasion will conclude with a dance.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. House have issued cards announcing an "at home" on the afternoon of Nov. 17, from 5 to 8 o'clock, at their elegant residence. Mrs. House will be assisted by a large number of Austin ladies and some distinguished visitors from a distance. The pleasures of the afternoon will give way in the evening to a "masquerade," complimentary to Miss Annie Hunter, in which some forty couples of the young society people will participate.

All arrangements have been perfected looking to the success of the theater party for Stuart Robson next Thursday night, and now the society people can make ready to witness the grand event. Some twenty-five couples comprise the distinguished forty, and upon the conclusion of the performance the party will repair to Billeisen's Cafe, where an elegant banquet will round out the evening's pleasures.

The ladies of the Southern Presbyterian church will give a bazaar and supper on Friday night of this week.

Invitations are out announcing a progressive euchre Wednesday evening, November 9th, at the residence of Mrs. M. H. McLaurin, 1802 West avenue.

Cards have been issued announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Bettie Wideman and Mr. Thomas J. Anderson, which happy event will be solemnized in the Tenth Street Methodist church next Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

There was an informal card party at the Avenue hotel Monday night, which afforded much pleasure to the twelve or fifteen couples who participated therein.

The Path Finders met Wednesday as per adjournment, the president presiding. The occasion was rendered noticeable by the presence of additional bright young faces—earnest thinking girls, who have joined their older sisters, gleaming in the fields of learning. The program was briefer than usual because of the sickness and consequent absence of several members whose names were enrolled for the afternoon's entertainment. Mrs. Davis read a succinct and well-written paper on the history of England from "King Alfred's reign to the Norman conquest," and gave her hearers much pleasure with valuable information. Mrs. Kreisler followed with a summary of the literature of that period, gracefully skimming over the beauties of ideas and condensing the cream of the whole in a manner that evidenced the thought and study she had given her paper. The order of business was then taken up and several applicants for membership voted into the club. When outlining a program for the next weekly meeting, the ruling of "the chair" was called into question by the treasurer, whose summer in Canada seems to have increased not only her avoirdupois but assurance as well. She grew so obstreperous in her demand for a change of names on the program, because of priority of membership, the dignity of "the chair" became endangered, but happily the individuals interested with all the sweetness of youthful good nature effected between themselves the desired exchange and the dear little treasurer sat down triumphant, and "the chair" breathed freely again.

Wednesday next being the anniversary of the organization of the club there will be a reception of officers, and all members are earnestly requested to meet promptly at the residence of Mrs. C. E. Anderson at 4 o'clock p. m.

One of the principal events of the week will be the appearance of Mrs. Alice J. White, the great "Improved and Artistic Dress Lecturer," at the board of trade hall Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Her appearance will be of particular interest to the ladies as Mrs. White is said to possess some twenty creations of Worth that she exhibits to the lovers of the beautiful incidental to her lecture on that theme.

On the 23rd inst., the appearance of one of Austin's well known and charming debutants will be signalled by a very elaborate and elegant reception.

Austin society will be especially fortunate this winter in being graced by the presence of some beautiful belles from other cities. Miss Collins of Nashville, Tenn., as the guest of Mrs. W. R. Hamby, is the first to favor Austin. Miss H. Snook, an Atlanta belle, will be here Monday, the guest of Miss Withers, and during the coming month some dozen others are expected.

Mrs. T. F. Mitchell issued invitations to a number of society ladies for last Thursday afternoon to meet Mrs. John Garland James, and though the day was dismal and rainy the invited guests assembled en masse in the flower-decked rooms of Mrs. J. H. Smith's hospitable home on West Eighth. Mrs. James will reside in Austin in the future, and being endowed with rare charm of manner, exceptionally sweet voice and distinguished presence, she will doubtless attract much attention. Mrs. Mitchell entertained in her usual happy, natural manner, extending a warm welcome to each, which was reflected in the thorough enjoyment of all. The spacious west room was arranged for progressive euchre, at the close of which Mrs. A. C. Goethe and Mrs. C. J. Smith, each counting twelve points, proceeded to compete for the antique vase, which was carried off by the latter. Mesdames Lowry, Myrick and Miss Helen Grant having made equal counts, competed for the Columbian spoon, resulting in Mrs. Myrick's success. Miss Sallie Seagriff triumphantly took possession of the "booby."

The rooms were handsomely decorated. A notable feature of which was an artistic pyramid of ferns and begonias, resting in the centre of the main hall—this lovely piece was designed by Mrs. Barrett. The following ladies were present: Mesdames J. S. Hogg, John Garland James, E. J. Hood, E. M. House, A. M. Collins, J. J. Tobin, Dr. Steiner, D. T. Iglehart, C. J. Smith, A. C. Goethe, Lewis Hancock, M. W. Moore, W. H. Tobin, Julia Truitt, Bishop, Chas. Evans, John S. Myrick, Fannie Dinwiddie, C. W. Daniels, Charles Lowry, Anna D. Hearne, Carl Dray, John Maxey, Frank Glover, Walter Caldwell, L. M. Croaker and Misses Pease, Steele, Seagriff, Hendricks, James, Otley, Hunter, Ripsh, Bowers, Hazy Bowers, Grant, Maud Shelley, Teagarden, Maud Moore, Mary Miller and Helen Beall.

The Austin Cooking club, composing, as you all know, a membership of twelve of Austin's most charming young ladies, met last afternoon at the residence of Miss Helen Beall, to enjoy the second luncheon of their series. The mere announcement of the meeting was sufficient to bring all members out, as there is a danger attendant upon being absent from a meeting that none but the initiated can fully appreciate. The menu arranged by the young ladies was of such an elegant and toothsome classification that those not present cannot begin to fully appreciate. The principal interest centering around the meeting was the voting upon names of the gentlemen who were to be the honored guests of the club at their "Thanksgiving" dinner. Each lady placed the name of one of her particular friends at the mercy of the club, and it was just as promptly snowed under. This was going on at such a lively rate that "the chair" investigated the matter and found that each lady suggesting a man dropped the fatal "no" in the ballot-box, thereby killing her own man. The explanation of this possibly lies in the fact that having said "no" so often in life this "no" was possibly an oversight produced by force of habit. The chair "ordered" new nominations, suggesting the Australian ballot law to be the rule, and a dozen Austin young men were successful in passing the mark as to who they are. The Lord and the ladies alone know as yet, but as the club did not adjourn until late, the cause of secrecy is apparent. Be that as it may, the club will give an excellent dinner Thanksgiving day, consisting of sixteen courses, and the writer feels no hesitancy in saying it will be a grand affair. This dinner will be strictly formal and "swell" to the utmost degree, especially in the case of the young gentlemen who for months past have been boarding at chile joints.

The club was honored last afternoon by the presence of Miss Collins of Nashville, Tenn., and Miss Ellen Burroughs as guests of the occasion.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE BILL.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—At the coming session of parliament Viscount Wolmer (Liberal-Unionist), will introduce in the house of commons a woman's suffrage bill. It is expected the bill will receive 150 votes from Conservative and Liberal members.

At a meeting of the Liberal association a significant demonstration of discontent at Gladstone's home rule policy was made. Lord Hothfield presided at the meeting. He announced that he had decided to resign the presidency of the association. He held that the recent Conservative victories in elections were due to objections many Liberals entertained for home rule.

THE WAR IN DAMOMEY.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Colonel Dods, commanding the French army against the Dahomeyans, has telegraphed details of the fighting that took place Oct. 20 and 21. His dispatch says the French were attacked at Akaa, by the whole strength of the Dahomeyans. The natives were repulsed with heavy loss after two days fighting. Colonel Dods says King Behanzin now wishes to come to terms. The French commander as a preliminary condition insisted upon the evacuation of Dahomeyan lines along the river Kato. King Behanzin refused and on Oct. 26 the French column, which had in the meantime been reinforced, attacked and carried two lines of entrenchments between Akaa and Kotopa. Oct. 27 the French captured an important line along the Kato, the strongest fortified position the French have yet captured. The total French loss throughout these battles was ten killed and seventy-three wounded. After staying three days on the banks of the Kato Colonel Dods advanced along the road to Karmah preparing for the final march to Abomey, the capital. Colonel Dods concluded the dispatch by stating that the resistance of the Dahomeyans was becoming less vigorous owing to the enormous losses they have sustained in the numerous encounters with the French.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined I'd could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds.
